

Using computers in the Open Study Zone in the Library of the Wrocław University of Science and Technology

General rules

1. In the Open Study Zone (OSZ) users have access to computers on which it is possible to use:
 - a) Internet,
 - b) electronic resources and other services subscribed by the University,
 - c) installed office software.
2. The use of computer stations is free.
3. Time of using computer stations is not limited, however in exceptional cases, the user may be asked by a library staff to change a computer station or to leave it earlier than planned.
4. Users are allowed to save downloaded materials from the Internet, and then copy them on their own media (to the extent licenses allow). The contents of the computer are cleared when they are turned off.
5. Users are not allowed to make any changes in the configuration of computers, disconnect the cable, mouse or a keyboard.
6. When connecting your own equipment, use the power strips on the tables.
7. In case of non-compliance with these rules, the library staff may request the user to leave the computer station and may temporarily or permanently deprive user of the right to use computers in the Open Study Zone. This decision will be made by the Director of the Library.
